

The People's Column

Good morning! What about taking a walk to the Sue Haswell Park. The Bryan Eagle says that, I am willing to make some playthings for children to be put there; some of the children not attending our school but enjoying its playground are already counting the chickens before they hatch, they are very anxious to know what will I make for them and how soon and some of our own children say, "Please Father, don't make the same things for the park as you made for us, then our things would cease to be something extra."

If you are interested do not interrupt me until I am through explaining the plan for my castles in the air (a playground in Sue Haswell Park). First of all I observe that I am not the only one interested in it. More power to the "Lions"! They ordered some $300 worth of play equipment; a very good investment, indeed. But more than likely these few things will not accommodate all the children of Bryan, including the babies and their mothers. Many such things could be made with very little expense to the city. $300 would not buy the things I made for the St. Joseph's school playground with an expense of $14.60. Furthermore some of the "extra things" cannot be bought anywhere, but can be easily made. Made from what? From the city's junk pile, I mean, from things that before long will hear a sentence (Continued on page 6)

Ancient Definition of Family Is Used Taking 1930 Census; Enumerators Start Today Asking Many Questions

In spite of the numerous interpretations that might be made of the term "family" today, the definition of the word as understood in the day of Abraham and the patriarchs will be applied in the general census enumeration which begins today and that term will be held to mean, "A group of persons living in the same dwelling place or premises," according to Dr. Joseph A. Hill, acting director of the census bureau.

The persons in this group need not be related to each other. Permanent lodgers and boarders are considered to be members of the household where they find shelter and, transient lodgers will be enumerated as a member of the family where he resides, or if he has no home and maintains no permanent headquarters, he will be counted as a member of the household where he is staying when visited by the enumerator.

Police headquarters, prisons, asylums, etc., will be termed institutional families.

"Two or more families may co-exist in one household." (Continued on page 6)

EDITOR SHOT FATALLY; OLD FEUD BLAMED

ELECTION QUARREL FATAL TO TWO LEADERS AT YAZOO CITY

(By Associated Press) YAZOO CITY, Miss., April 2.—Frank Birdsell, editor of the Yazoo Sentinel and member of the state tax committee, died today from bullet wounds inflicted yesterday by Mayor J. T. Stricklin, who committed suicide soon after the shooting.

The trouble is said to have arisen over an old feud. Eyewitnesses said Dr. Hawkins, a dentist, and Mayor Stricklin were standing on Main street talking when Editor Birdsell turned the corner. As the editor approached, the mayor said:

"Well, I might as well have it out with you fellows now."

With that he pulled his revolver and pointed it at the dentist, but darted up a nearby stairway and caught the bullet in his coat.

The mayor then fired point blank at the editor, twice in quick succession. The editor collapsed to the ground and while he lay there bleeding, witnesses said the mayor fired a third shot.

Then Mayor Stricklin calmly walked to his automobile and drove to his son's undertaking establishment. There among the coffins he ended his life by firing the fifth bullet through his head. Policemen in hot pursuit came upon his body.

Dr. Hawkins, who had been supported by Birdsell, was defeated for mayor by Stricklin.

Tomato Growers Move Plants to Field This Week

Practically all the plants for pledged tomato acreage in Brazos county this year are being moved from cold frames to fields this week, according to F. H. Tulloch, who is acting in an advisory capacity to tomato growers in this section.

Mr. Tulloch states that the damage to plants intended for planting in Brazos county was very slight, but that a small number of plants that had been moved from the cold frames before the cold weather of last week were somewhat bruised by the wind. The fact that there has been considerable damage to tomatoes in other sections of the state is to the advantage of Brazos county planters, says Mr. Tulloch.

In Mr. Tulloch's opinion, more than the acreage pledged for Brazos county will be set to tomatoes this year, while the market acreage of the entire state is likely to be reduced through losses from cold weather and freezing. Since plants may now be safely moved directly from hot-beds to fields, it will be possible to take orders for plants to be set in fields not already pledged to this year's market and any farmers interested in setting plants for the market are invited to attend the Tomato Growers' Association meeting at the court house on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and make arrangements to secure plants at that time.

HI-JACKERS ROB A-M MAN LAST NIGHT

WILL GANDY HELD UP ON WAY TO EXPERIMENTAL FARM STATION

Hi-jackers who are thought to have known of his possession of cash on hand, held up Will Gandy, field superintendent of the Texas A. and M. Experimental farm about midnight Tuesday night and robbed him of about $37. The men were masked with handkerchiefs. Mr. Gandy said, and one carried a flashlight and the other a revolver. He was able to give no description of the men and the authorities are without a clue to their identity.

Mr. Gandy was on his way to the main station on the farm after leaving the 11 o'clock bus at the Boyett corner. He had gotten across the railroad tracks and down close to the Van Ness home when two men stepped out from behind some road machinery and halted Gandy.

After he had given them his pocketbook they told him to walk on and not look back. He followed instructions and the men disappeared. The hold-up was reported to the county authorities but they were without any clue to the identity of the hi-jackers.

This morning Gandy, who had been paid off Saturday, went to the scene of the hold-up and found his pocketbook in the road, with some papers but minus the currency it had contained when he turned it over.

TODAY'S WIRE FROM Will Rogers

To the Editor of The Eagle: BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 2.—Here is the advance copy of what Mr. Hoover will say over the phone Thursday to the presidents of Argentina, Chili and Uruguay:

"Brother presidents, you are lucky to preside over a land where there is no Pennsylvania to make your tariff, where sugar is a commodity and not an issue, where your manufacturers and your farmers are so primitive that they think their relief has to come from their own efforts and not from their president, where your countries are not prominent enough to have refugees stranded at foreign conferences; and lastly brothers, if the prohibition issue ever comes up during your term, resign quick in favor of your worst enemy. Boys I am telling you a mouthful."

What Is a Farm Now Determined By Census Taker

A farm, according to the Census Bureau, is all the land farmed by one person, whether it is three acres or three thousand acres.

Sounds simple, doesn't it? Well, it wasn't so simple for the government officials to decide what should be considered a farm by the enumerators during the census to be taken in April. Much study and years of practical experience were necessary before the short, concise definition was agreed upon.

The amount of farm land owned by one person has nothing to do with the definition of a farm so far as the Census Bureau is concerned. The question is not how much land does he own but how much does he operate or farm. A man who owns 200 acres might farm half of it himself and rent the other half out to three tenants, 50 acres to each. This would go down on the census records as four farms, because the land farmed by each man is considered as a unit.

On the other hand, one man might rent various tracts of land from 10 different owners. He might rent a few acres on shares, a few more from somebody else for money rent, and the rest from other people on different terms. The different pieces of land might be widely separated. If they were all farmed and managed by one man, however, they would all be put down together as one farm, if, however, a separate manager were hired to supervise a certain portion of the land that portion would go down as a separate farm.

No tract of land less than three acres will be registered as a farm unless it produced more than $250 worth of farm products last year. In the census of 1929 if a piece of land of less than three acres was farmed by a man who gave his entire time to the task, it was listed as a farm regardless of how little it produced, but this year none of these small tracts will be counted unless they produced $250 worth of products.

Memorial Tree To Be Planted To Moses Bryan

HOUSTON, April 2. — Moses Austin Bryan, who was in the battle of San Jacinto and for whom his son, Lewis R. Bryan, has contributed a memorial tree, to be planted on the Battleground Road, was born in Missouri September 26, 1817, and landed in Texas at the mouth of the Brazos River January 2, 1831. He went to San Felipe, where he acted as private secretary for his uncle, Stephen F. Austin, and went with his uncle, who was a member of the legislature of Coahuila and Texas, to Saltillo, Mexico, that fall, spending the winter and spring there.

While in Saltillo he boarded with a Spanish family and learned to read, write and speak the Spanish language. When trouble arose at Anahuac with Bradburn and Ugartechea at Velasco, resulting in the expulsion of Bradburn and the capture of fort and Ugartechea and troops at Velasco in June 1832, General Austin accompanied General Mexico to Texas for the purpose of comprising the differ-

Need Creamery Here

Those who heard W. F. Schilling of the Federal Farm Board at College on Monday and again in Houston Tuesday were not only convinced of the wisdom of his appointment to this responsible position, but they also should have been convinced of the wonderful possibilities in dairying. Mr. Schilling made it clear that the Federal Farm Board would lend its unlimited finances in establishing cooperative creameries wherever the farmers were dairy minded and wherever there was need of assistance. He declared that success will surely come to those who seek scientific guidance.

Lack of sufficient dairy cows of good production, scarcity of home-grown feeds and the presence of the fever tick make it clear that we are not quite ready for a cooperative creamery, but our potentialities are obvious. The farmers and business men of Brazos county should lose no time in cinching a creamery for Bryan. Our neglect will mean the other place's opportunity.

ences between the colonists and Mexican authorities, they going to Tampico and sailing from there around to the mouth of the Brazos River. Moses Austin Bryan, then 14 years old, returned to Texas by way of Matamoros and San Antonio, accompanied by a Mexican guard and bringing the horses and mules with General Austin's personal baggage and equipment that he had taken with him from Texas to Saltillo the year before.

He went with his uncle, General Austin, to San Antonio in the fall of 1835 and returned with him after he had been appointed commissioner to the United States. He was present at the signing of the Declaration of Independence, but was not a member of the convention on March 2, at Washington, and immediately joined the army under General Houston, being a member of Capt. Mosely Baker's company, remaining with the army until after the battle of San Jacinto. He frequently acted as interpreter for General Houston where Mexicans were captured and brought into camp, and was interpreter when General Santa Anna was brought in as a prisoner and made his formal surrender to General Houston. Mr. Bryan also volunteered and was in the campaign to the Rio Grande in 1842 under General Summerville and for four years during the civil war from 1861 to 1865 was a major in the Confederate army.

His grandson, L. R. Bryan, Jr., also has contributed a tree and it is the intention of the family, if necessary, to increase the number of these trees to five, helping to provide for those veterans whose relatives can not now be found or may not now be able to make even this small contribution.

GAS THIEVES TAP VALVE ON HOWELL TANKS

CHECKUP SHOWS 4,100 GALS.
MISSING. ONE MAN IS ARRESTED

(From Monday's Daily)
Even joy riding youths are charged with the theft of gasoline from the storage tanks of Howell and Comp. on College Avenue, from which it is said more than 4,000 gallons of fuel has disappeared in the last two months. Warrants were sworn out for three and one of them already has been arrested and is in jail.

A check-up of the gas in storage showed that approximately 4,100 gallons was not accounted for, either in evaporation or in sales. Investigations by the city and county police authorities resulted in the discovery that gas had been consistently taken from the tanks in five and ten gallon lots, presumably for joy riding purposes.

One youth, whose name is withheld by the police, is said to have given information that led to charges against Dewey Carnes, Harold White and Bill Wright, all of whom are charged with theft of property valued at $5 or less. Charges will not be filed, it is said, against the youth who gave the information that led to the warrants.

According to the police, Dewey Carnes aided in installing the plumbing connected with the system and knew the location of a valve that had been set in for the purpose of draining the tank, either in emergency or for purposes of cleaning it. It was through this valve that the gas was drawn off, according to the police.

Constable Horace Reed arrested Carnes, who was indicted last fall on charges of failure to provide for his family, and it is expected the other two alleged gas thieves will be arrested before night.

Whiskey Dumped In City Sewers; Fishes Get Gay

If there is any bacterial destroying virtue in Brazos Bottom hooch it is the opinion of Sheriff J. H. Reed that he gave the sewer system a clean-up last week when he dumped 143 gallons of whiskey, 50 gallons of wine and 69 bottles of beer, the result of 14 raids in this county in the past two or three years, into the sewer system.

The evidence was destroyed by the sheriff on the order of District Judge W. C. Davis in view of the fact that disposition had been made of all the cases.

Some of the whiskey, most of it in charred oak kegs, had been in the possession of the sheriff for two years or more and old timers who were judges of good liquor in the pre-Prohibition days, were of the opinion that in all probability some pretty good "corn" was given to the fishes.

The dumping of the contraband is said, also, to explain some stories of unusual activity among fish in the Brazos river at about the point where the sewage from the city drains into that stream.

Bryan Floral Co. Opens New Office; Faces on Pierce

New offices of the Bryan Floral and Nursery Company have been opened on Pierce avenue, the new building having been completed within the last few days. The new office is fitted with comfortable furniture, display refrigerators, with work rooms in the rear.

The architecture of the new office, which lines up with the greenhouses, between which it is built, does not break the skyline of the pecker roofs.

One advantage of the new office is that it opens directly into the greenhouse where potted plants are grown so that purchasers may look over the stock before selection without unnecessary trouble.

Asylum Patient Arrested Here; Memory Is Gone

A man who looks to be about 30 years old, 5 feet, 9 inches tall, dark hair and eyes, well dressed and wearing a hat that had been blocked in Waco, was taken into custody by Sheriff J. H. Reed on Main street in Bryan Saturday evening late. The man seemed rational, but could not tell where he lived or what his name was, and was without information as to himself.

No papers to give any clue to his identity were found in his pockets, but his shirt was marked Roy Goodrich. He was well cared for at the jail, and talked freely to all who questioned him, but was a blank as to his past, his relatives or his home.

Sunday, Dr. Dwyer Goodrich, who operates one of the busses from Bryan to Fort Worth, heard of the man Roy Goodrich, and went to the jail where he identified him as his brother and took him with him to his home.

Mr. Goodrich told the officers that when 12 years of age Roy Goodrich was shot, accidentally, and since that time had no memory of any body or anything. He said his brother had been in a hospital and had escaped when he came in to Bryan.

Why A Home Merchants Association?

BRYAN, as a community, has won an enviable reputation among the smaller cities of Texas, because of its progress and stability. Established in 1866 it has, through all the years grown and developed steadily, without inflated propositions, oil booms or industrial expansion programs.

Bryan's steady growth has been because of a good location and a productive agricultural area, linked with the efforts of its entire citizenship. Naturally, in this steady growth, community leaders have been developed—men with intimate knowledge of community needs, and with the confidence and trust of their fellows. On them has fallen the brunt of leadership. To their efforts, supported by the people they served, the present prosperity and progress of Bryan is due.

But, times and methods change. Bryan, as is the case with many like communities, today is threatened by an invasion of capital seeking outlet and investment in retail merchandise channels that threatens individual enterprise.

For this reason, if for no other, such business methods tend to stultify rather than to stimulate community growth.

Because such a system of merchandising has developed here, and now threatens Bryan and Brazos County, it becomes necessary for the good of the entire community, to organize the home forces, in order that the plan for continued progress for which Bryan stands, may be carried forward. Out of this condition was born the Home Merchants' Association, of which you have heard so much.

Together, for a bigger and better Bryan, progressing through the coming years with the same steady growth which has characterized it in the past, we stand—155 strong, as one big unit, working hand in hand for Bryan and Brazos County.

The aim and ideals of the Home Merchants' Association are to press ahead with the progress and prosperity of our community toward a community success far exceeding any previous efforts yet attempted.

We, of the Home Merchants' Association stand ready to serve, and pledge our assistance to any move of progress that will be of benefit to Bryan and Brazos county.

One of the steps which this organization is interested in is the creation of the best possible market in Bryan for the products of the farms of Brazos county, realizing that the prosperity of the whole community and its future progress depend upon binding urban and rural districts as closely together as possible.

Bryan is proud of the fact that it is essentially a Home City—a splendid community with all the advantages and none of the disadvantages of a large city. Here we have neither vast riches nor dire poverty, but a generally prosperous, happy and contented people.

We are proud of our public institutions, our schools, our churches, and of an unusual civic and cultural development.

WHY HAS BRYAN these wonderful aspects of which we are so proud?

Because, the united citizenship of Bryan and Brazos county in the past has had the interest, the initiative and forethought to provide them. Without them, our property values would lose the standard and sink to a lower level. The stability of property values in any community is founded upon the ideals and ambitions of that community. When such ideals promote progress, advancement of property values inevitably follows.

CUR HOME PEOPLE HAVE MADE BRYAN WHAT IT IS TODAY.

OUR HOME PEOPLE WILL MAKE BRYAN EVEN GREATER AS THEY STAND TOGETHER FOR CONTINUED PROGRESS IN THE FUTURE.

Developing Texas Waterways

Interest in developing the Trinity river as a navigable river for commerce, tying it into the nearly completed intracoastal canal is growing steadily and already has the attention of men with commercial and industrial interests in the territory that it might serve, as well as of engineers and others interested in the development of the inland waterways of the country.

In an article by W. S. Mosher in the April issue of East Texas, we find the following statement:

"The Trinity River is an unusually good prospect for navigation because of its narrow banks, the depth of its channel and the quality of the soil composing its banks. It does not readily alter its course or shift its boundaries at times of flood. These things render less expensive the construction and maintenance of locks and dams."

"The present campaign comes at a propitious moment, at a time when the intracoastal canal system is nearing completion. The Trinity River constitutes a logical unit of this system, which will give water connections with Pittsburgh, Chicago, Minneapolis and all other points on the meshwork of navigable streams. Steamboats will ply freely as shuttles between the Southwest, and these various remote ports of the North and East, interchanging products to great mutual advantage."

This proposed development of the Trinity calls attention to the proposed conservation and reclamation program for the valley of the Brazos river. Though the possible use of this stream for the transport of primary freight, such as makes up the larger burden of traffic through the Intracoastal canal, has not been widely discussed to date, already this possibility is of interest to those citizens of Texas who are interested in the development of the river along the lines laid down in the legislation which created the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation District. This places the whole of the river and all its tributaries in one district and if navigation were deemed possible as conservation and reclamation work progressed, there would be control over the whole valley for the purpose of working out this plan.

From the headquarters of the Brazos district comes the following statement:

"The rapid multiplication of the uses for water in Texas, for municipal supply, for irrigation, and other purposes has, in a comparatively brief space of time, revolutionized the popular sentiment respecting the necessity for conserving flood and storm waters, and water conservation has become one of the great economic questions demanding the considerate thought of the people. So important has the question of conserving all available waters of Texas for useful employment become, that the problem of flood protection is being superseded by the even greater problem of providing facilities and improvements to prevent the waste without useful service of all storm and flood waters. Such improvements of necessity contemplate and make practicable the reclamation of lands subject to overflow as well as the protection of property over vast areas from frequently recurring destructive flood waters."

"The stream unit control of flood waters is the only legal and practicable way in which flood waters may be controlled, and the only way in which each of the Regional Divisions of the stream area may find it practicable to secure an equitable distribution of the flood waters of the river."

This system of control also should make more likely the development of the Brazos as a navigable stream which might serve many communities. Undoubtedly there were reaches of the Brazos used for the transport of freight before the general development of railroads, just as many other rivers were so used. With rail transportation this method of transport fell into disuse, but slowly the economy of this system for certain kinds of freight is becoming generally recognized and the day is coming when millions of tons of primary freight will be carried on the major streams of this country, developed into a network that will cover the entire country. When that day comes we may find the Brazos employed for this purpose, as well as developed so that its waters may be conserved for industry and recreation and thousands of acres of practically waste bottom land reclaimed and made productive.

Good Work For Bryan

Today is the final day of more than thirteen years of consecutive years of service as secretary of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce for S. E. Eberstadt, who accepted that position a little more than 13 years ago and who declined re-election for another year at the annual meeting of the board of directors in January.

During Mr. Eberstadt's tenure of office Bryan has developed from a country market town into one of the best cities of its size in the country, in Texas or in any other state. It has become known far and wide for its stability and progressiveness, and it has made a steady and substantial growth.

At the time Mr. Eberstadt took over the secretaryship of the organization the city commission form of government was up and his first work was gathering data and information which was used to sell the idea of this form of government to the voters of the city. Without doubt this form of government has worked to Bryan's advantage and the unqualified success of the commission form here is one important factor in the good reputation that Bryan has among the cities of the country, large and small. It is a fact that this city is regarded as an outstanding example of what is possible under the city commission form and in the operation of municipally owned public utilities.

When Mr. Eberstadt came to Bryan the chamber of commerce had a membership roster of 125. Also, at that time, the accounts of the organization showed it to be $85 to the bad, or in the "red" as the average bookkeeper would phrase it. Today the organization has a membership list of approximately 500 and carried a balance of $3,000 over from 1929.

In the years of Mr. Eberstadt's tenure of office the budget of the organization has grown to approximately $10,000 annually and the work of the organization has been broadened in scope until it has compared favorably with that done by any other similar organization anywhere. A shining example of the efficiency of the organization was found in the manner the East Texas Chamber of Commerce annual convention was entertained last May. In this period of important growth for Bryan, also, the chamber of commerce has given wide publicity to the city and unquestionably this has been a material aid to this growth.

This evidence of growth in Bryan is not cited for the purpose of even intimating that it should be credited to the efforts of Mr. Eberstadt, but rather to show that in his experience here Bryan has taken the long step from country town to a small but prosperous city and that the chamber of commerce has played its part in the growth that has been made and in planning for an even larger growth from year to year.

Citizens who have been interested in the largest development possible with healthy growth have been chosen from year to year to the directorate of the organization. Policies that have been sane yet progressive have been mapped out and these have been put into execution by the officers. The net result we all know.

In his work as secretary Mr. Eberstadt has been loyal at all times to the best interests of Bryan and its trade territory and has worked early and late to carry out the policies of his directors and to develop the greatest possible measure of good will for Bryan, not only in this immediate section but wherever he might be. His has been an energetic, intelligent and loyal service to the best interests of Bryan and many friends will watch his future course with interest and best wishes for the greatest possible success. The 13 years he spent with the chamber of commerce were critical years in Bryan's history and to his untiring effort must be credited a share of the stimulus that resulted in that growth.

A Brazos Farm Market

During the past year there has been an especially active drive on for diversified and "live-at-home" farming in Brazos county. The importance of getting away from cotton altogether and for planting feed and other crops and for supplying the food for the family, so far as possible, from the farm garden and poultry and dairy stock, using the surplus as a source of revenue with which to purchase at least those foods that may not be produced, has been stressed continuously. The net result is that this spring more farmers are planting feed crops than ever before and larger acreages are being set aside for these crops. Also, more farmers are improving their poultry flocks, milking cows and cultivating a garden to produce fresh vegetables as well as supplies that may be canned or held in some other shape for winter consumption.

But as a rule every farmer who attempts to produce his own food supply, as nearly as possible—milk and dairy products, eggs and poultry and vegetables—cannot do this without producing some surplus. To make this part of his farm operations profitable and to bring his living cost to the lowest possible point, there should be a ready and available market at all seasons for his surplus.

This is a matter in which Bryan, the market center for this trade territory, should be interested. Large quantities of dairy and poultry products and of vegetables are consumed by the people of this city every day. Much of this food supply is shipped in from foreign sources. It is entirely possible that the importation of a certain supply is necessary but it is very probable that much of this supply could be obtained at home if there were a closer cooperation between the producers of these foodstuffs in this county and the places of distribution to the ultimate consumer.

The more attractive Bryan may be made to the men and women of its trade territory, as an outlet for their products, the more attractive it is bound to be to them as a source from which to draw their supplies of foods, and household and farm necessities and equipment. There is no question but that every effort that can be made to create the biggest and best possible market in Bryan for the products of Brazos county farms should be put forth, to the end that the entire community may be made more closely cooperative, the ultimate in community spirit developed and the general prosperity of the entire area boosted.

Up in Boston federal agents have evolved the plan of padlocking hotels, one floor at a time. If this is followed consistently a good many hotels ultimately stand to be out of business.

That the persistent advertiser wins.

The merchants who advertise quality and service, and then back their ads by the right kind of merchandise and service, are the successful business men of today.

Successful business concerns learned long ago that selling right is just as important as buying right, and that one of the chief factors in selling is to buy quality, then help sales by persistently telling the public where they are in business and what they have to sell.

To be a success, a business concern must use the aid of truthful advertising. They should not boast but they should tell about their merchandise in a language that everyone can understand.

Continuous advertisers gain the confidence of the public because they always give their customers a square deal. That is how they retain old customers and gain new ones.

A well advertised business is always a growing business!

Lights and Shadows On Manhattan Isle

BY O. O. MINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 2.—Every unimportant nobody is dashing off a full length autobiography these days. So today's column will be about myself. Take a deep breath and let's go. My first newspaper job was chasing local items up and down the main street of a small town.

I am still doing the same thing in about the same way only my main street is Broadway and the avenues and side streets. I frequently write protesting letters to editors if they blue pencil my stuff, which is cheeky. For when I see it in print I wonder why they print it at all.

Most of my writing is done at night and for ten years, save to catch a steamer or train, I have not seen the sun rise. I have been writing a daily article about New York for 16 years and only two strike me as worth preserving. One of those was an idea suggested by Michael Arlen.

I have never intentionally written a line I thought would wound the feelings of another, nor have I ever spoken slightly of a race or a religion. Some of the most sarcastic screeds about me have been written by writers I have befriended.

I have worked on country weeklies, small town dailies, big city papers, two metropolitan journals and several magazines. My smallest weekly income from writing was $1 for a joke told to Life. My biggest was $4,200 which I never hope to equal again.

My average mail is 100 letters a day. More epistles come from California than any other state. The only city of any size from which I do not ever recall receiving a letter is Baton Rouge, La. The biggest mail from any city comes from Denver, Colorado.

Ninety-eight per cent of mail is friendly. The other two per cent is anonymous and sneering. I answer every letter as soon as possible. I do my best work—or so it seems to me—on dark, gloomy and drizzling days. At times I do my stint in a half hour. Other times it takes me all day.

I invariably go to my typewriter bursting with enthusiasm, but it soon evaporates. In 15 minutes I am usually casting about for an excuse to procrastinate. I become totally absorbed in the prospect of a developing hang-nail. I putter with desk drawers. Shine the glass top of my desk. Romp with the dog. Anything to delay. Yet no other work interests me.

I am a professional worrier. There is not a day that something does not pop up and befog me with depression. I look upon the worst side of everything and yet in great emergencies—real troubles—I am amazingly calm.

About once a year I am seized with an overwhelming urge to be thrifty. I remove uncancelled stamps from envelopes and resort to other bursts of niggardiness. It lasts about two weeks and then I go on a spending spree that incites polite but firm telephone calls from the bank.

Nearly all my life has been spent in hotels—my father was a hotel keeper. I tried keeping house for two months in Newport, Ky., opposite Cincinnati. Neither my wife or I liked the experiment. We rarely eat at the same restaurant twice in succession. I frequently order three helpings of dessert. I am an extravagant tipper—save to taxicab drivers. I pay my debts promptly chiefly because they are a source of worry unpaid.

I keep a guest book and with exceptions everybody who has called in the past six years has inscribed their names therein. Some day it will be worth a fortune.

My wife has for ten years attended to all my business affairs. She arranges and dictates all the terms of my contracts. The net income goes to her and I still feel she has been underpaid. The gentlest of women, she is declared by astute executives to be the shrewdest they ever encountered. I have frequently made a fool of myself but she has always been tolerant. And that is why I consider myself an extremely lucky (Deep Bass Chorus: I'll say he's lucky) guy.

PRIZE MONEY IS GIVEN FOR LEGION FAIR

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SETS ASIDE $500 FOR THIS PURPOSE

Action to build up the prize list of the Brazos County American Legion fair was taken by the Chamber of Commerce this morning, when the directors approved an appropriation of $500 for this purpose.

The recommendation came from the agricultural committee, H. H. Williamson, chairman, and that this amount be set aside and that the prizes to be given be recommended and selected by County Agent C. L. Beason and Miss Lucy Givens, county home demonstration agent. This plan also was approved.

The directors devoted most of the weekly session this morning to a discussion of the census, which is being taken this week, and the importance of enumerating every resident of the city and county was stressed.

Directors present were: R. V. Armstrong, Wilson Bradley, W. J. Coulter, Mit Dansby, W. K. Gibbs, F. L. Henderson, W. S. Higgs, Tyler Haswell, W. C. Mitchell, M. L. Parker and Mrs. Lee J. Rountree.

Auto Equipment Thieves Active

Automobile equipment thieves spent a profitable hour or two in the garages at the Edge apartments Saturday night, three car owners finding their machines out of commission Sunday morning.

The car belonging to E. M. Regenbrecht was stripped of all four tires, while those belonging to Dr. W. E. Young and E. W. Glenn were minus important accessories, though they were not stripped so completely. There is no clue to the thieves.

The Dolly Boyett Oil and Gas Company also suffered Saturday night from the depredations of equipment lifters. One of the company's large trucks, parked at the Bryan Service Station, was robbed of two tires and tools. The loss was estimated at more than $50.

Funeral Service Held Today for Woman of Edge

Funeral service for Mrs. J. A. Broadus of the Edge community, Brazos county, were held this morning at 10 o'clock at the House cemetery near Edge, and were conducted by Rev. J. J. Pipkin of Bryan. Interment was made in the House cemetery, under the direction of McCulloch-Dansby, funeral directors of Bryan.

Mrs. J. A. Broadus was 79 years, 8 months and 8 days old at the time of her death, and had lived in Brazos county continuously for the past 55 years. She made her home with her son-in-law, J. W. Murphy of Edge, her daughter, Mrs. Murphy having passed away several years ago. Kentucky was her native state.

Besides her son-in-law, J. W. Murphy, with whom she resided, Mrs. Broadus is also survived by three sons: E. H. Broadus of Hearne; E. E. Broadus of Crowell, and W. J. Broadus of Chillicothe.

LOYALTY TO A NEWSPAPER

Nothing worse can be said of an employee of a newspaper than he proved a "traitor". Down thru the history of journalism there have been "traitors to the trade." And once it is known that this man or woman has broken the faith the future assumes a hue of ebony.

Perhaps that is the reason the newspaper business, once it wraps its fingers around an individual, refuses to allow him to escape. There is something romantic about newspapers, be they large daily journals or small ones. A newspaper office has a certain atmosphere; those that have spent years in a newspaper office become so wrapped up in it they soon become a part of this atmosphere.

The picture is only ruined when a trusted individual breaks the ties and earns the title of "traitor."

The traitor to his newspaper is one that has put self before service to the newspaper that pays him a living wage. They are hundreds of ways. There are hundreds of routes to take. A traitor can work in any department. An operator can be as much of a traitor as an editorial man; an advertising solicitor can be as much of a traitor as a circulation department employee. There is no limit, there are no set rules for the traitor to follow.

Every large newspaper in the United States today has its list of traitors. They are on the blacklist. The newspaper officials know they cannot be trusted to put their newspaper above everything else. And as a result they go through life and take to the grave the brand that was placed upon them. Larger newspapers experience traitors more than smaller ones. The temptations are greater. A reporter has more traps set for him. An editor becomes entangled in more political meshes. The rewards are huge.

Yet, the minute it is known that an employee has sold himself, his career comes to a permanent end. His newspaper life is blasted. And his reputation follows him where ever he goes.

That, probably, is the reason nine-tenths of newspapermen and women are loyal. They work for their newspaper. They boost it, they talk it. They give their all to it, whether the returns are large or small.

And that is the way it should be. —Mineral Wells Index.

REGRET MILLER QUILTS

Plans Approved For Modern Sewage
Disposal

No immediate steps will be taken by the Bryan city commission to find a successor to City Manager J. Bryan Miller, whose resignation was accepted by the commission Friday night, according to Mayor E. J. Jenkins.

The resignation of Mr. Miller, effective May 10, who has accepted the appointment of city manager of Lubbock, was received with regret by the city commission. The members all made statements to this effect and Mayor Jenkins named Commissioners H. A. Burger and D. L. Wilson to draft resolutions of regret, to be spread on the minutes of the commission.

According to Mayor Jenkins, as well as other members of the city commission, plenty of time will be employed in choosing a new city manager. Already a number of applications and inquiries have been received, but in view of the fact that some reorganization of city departments may be deemed expedient, no immediate effort will be made to secure Mr. Miller's successor.

In accepting Mr. Miller's resignation Mayor Jenkins asked that all work now in process of construction be completed before he left here, and Mr. Miller agreed that this should be done and that every effort possible would be made to carry out this plan.

The city commission approved a proposition submitted by Henry E. Elrod, municipal engineer of Houston, for the enlargement and modernizing of the west side sewage disposal system. The system, which now has a capacity of 200,000 gallons per day, will be improved to care for 350,000 gallons daily and is expected to care for all demands during at least ten years. The improvement, which will be along the lines of the latest methods employed in sewage disposal, will cost approximately $15,000. This plant serves about three-fourths of the population of Bryan.

The final estimate of J. C. Goreth Plumbing and Heating Company for work in the Travis and Bowie school buildings, amounting to $130.60 was allowed. The final estimate on the paving of Tabor avenue, between 25th and 26th streets, was approved. The total cost was $3,835. The city's share being $814.09. The commission also approved the bill for the landscaping of the Travis school building grounds, amounting to $375.

Members of the World War sleeping in Bryan city cemetery, will be marked with the "colors" and adorned with flowers. A short patriotic program will mark the occasion. The president appointed the following committee on arrangements for Decoration Day: General arrangements, Mrs. J. Webb Howell, chairman; Mrs. H. L. Durham, Mrs. P. S. Park, Mrs. H. L. Newton, Mrs. H. B. McDowell and Mrs. D. C. DeMaret.

Committee for marking the graves of ex-soldiers: Mrs. V. B. Edge, chairman; Mrs. R. H. Harrison, Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, Mrs. I. H. Johnson.

Following the business session, the program of the day on "Texas" was enjoyed. Beside the program as published there were also many "bits of Texas history" which added much to the pleasure and profit of the meeting.

The joint hostesses served a refreshment plate of sandwiches and tea. The April meeting of the chapter will be held Friday, April 18, at the home of Mrs. H. H. Newton, with the following joint hostesses: Mesdames D. P. Dansby, H. O. Ferguson, S. M. Hunter, D. C. DeMaret, and W. A. Withers.

Rev. Urbanovsky, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church has constructed and added to the playground equipment at St. Joseph's Parochial school a number of pieces of playground equipment that are proving popular with the children who attend St. Joseph's as well as with many others who live near the school grounds and come there to enjoy the play equipment after school hours in the evening.

Among the pieces built by Rev. Urbanovsky are a ferris wheel, a "head and heels", a giant stride, "jumping Jack" and a seesaw. Judging from the number of children who daily enjoy these play devices at St. Joseph's, Rev. Urbanovsky feels that similar pieces installed in Sue Haswell Park would be available to an even greater number of youngsters about town and he offers to build them for the city, provided the necessary materials are furnished him by the city or by individuals or organizations interested in providing wholesome recreation for the growing children of the community.

Members of the Brazos county fair board, of Earl Graham Post, No. 159, American Legion and of the boards advisory committee of farmers representing different rural sections of the county, had lunch at the LaSalle hotel today, the advisory committee being guests of the fair board.

Live stock and educational exhibits were stressed as the most important, although various plans in connection with the fair were brought out in a round table discussion of the whole question. Jess M. Cook, president of the board, presided.

Present at the luncheon were W. S. Conaway, Ben Lampo, Charlie Patronella, E. M. Seaman, C. L. Benson, Harry Estill, H. H. Williamson, Judge A. S. McSwain, Jess M. Cook, R. L. Foster, W. R. McCullough, S. E. Eberstadt and M. M. Erskine.

Musical Evening At Woman's Club On Friday Night

The musical given under the auspices of the Friendship Bible Class of the First Baptist church at the Woman's Club Friday evening attracted an appreciative audience.

The stage in the assembly room of the club house was effectively arranged with a decoration of rosy pink carnations and ferns, and potted ferns adorned the rooms throughout.

It was a great disappointment to Mrs. Dan Russell, who had charge of the program, when she was notified by telephone Friday morning of the illness of Mrs. Nick Goodrich of Marlin, who was to have been the soloist of the evening. However, Mrs. Russell and her helpers, filled in the numbers to have been rendered by Mrs. Goodrich. The program was as follows:

Bereave Jocelyn, Godard, and Hungarian Dance No. 5, Brans, violin, Mrs. J. A. Orr; piano, Mrs. C. W. Simmons.

HELP CARDS OVERCOME PITCHING HANDICAPS

Weakness in their pitching staff means that the Cardinals will have to rely on the defensive strength of this quintet in the 1930 campaign. Frisch and Bottomley in the infield and Douthit, Orsatti and Roettger in the outfield have proved their all-around dependability.

Yard Beautiful Contest Is Open Closes April 8

Entries to date in the Yard Beautiful contest have been entirely gratifying, according to Mrs. W. H. Cole, chairman of the registration committee, but due to the backwardness of the growing season, the committee has decided to extend the time for registration in the contest until April 8.

Residents of Bryan or College Station who have not already signed a registration blank are urged to call a member of the committee and indicate their desire to enter the contest, naming the class in which they expect to compete.

Ft. Worth Newspaper Man Visits Bryan

Bryan is a wide-awake progressive town and it has an appeal to the visitor with its broad main street and splendid buildings, in the opinion of Jimmie Record, managing editor of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, who with Mrs. Record were visitors in Bryan last night at the LaSalle Hotel. Mr. Record is also president of the Managing Editors of the Texas Associated Press newspapers, and has been thus honored two consecutive terms. He will preside at the one day meeting in Austin on April 6.

"I am for you. This hotel of yours, the LaSalle, would do credit to a town of twice its size," said Mr. Record when questioned as to Bryan extending the Managing Editors an invitation to hold their next meeting in Bryan.

While here Mr. and Mrs. Record visited Dr. and Mrs. Jno. W. Black. Mrs. Record and Mrs. Black are cousins. Navasota will be their next stop, thence to see Old Washington and Old Independence. "Just how many years I have been in Texas, I am not going to say, but I have never visited that part of the state," said Mr. Record.

Mr. and Mrs. Record were enroute to Houston on business and will return home by way of Austin.

"A Straight Line Is the Shortest Distance..."

YOU need a flashlight or an alarm clock. That's one point in a common geometrical problem. Somewhere a manufacturer is making, a store is offering for sale, exactly the flashlight or alarm clock you should have. That's the second point in your private problem. . . . And advertising is the straight line that shows the shortest distance between the two!

Day after day, in the advertising pages, you'll find straight lines drawn direct to the products you need. Look for them. Follow them. They may save you hours of searching.

And more than time, they'll save you money. Advertised products are those whose honest worth has made them popular. Merchants and manufacturers who advertise regularly have passed the public's test of fair dealing and reliability. By studying their announcements in the light of your own needs, you can buy most wisely and well.

Newspaper Reporter Becomes Owner Of Best Equipped Farm and Leader In Minnesota's Dairy Development

Hon. W. F. Shilling, member of the Federal Farm Board, who spent the day Monday at A. and M. College, was a newspaper reporter who was inspired to enter the field of dairy farming through reporting a farm congress meeting held in New York State more than 10 years ago.

Returning to his home town of Northfield, Minn., Mr. Shilling became editor of a small town newspaper, meanwhile living on a farm in the outskirts of the town, and building from a most modest beginning what is now held to be the best equipped farm in the entire United States.

Mr. Shilling's later years of activity have been devoted to the organization of cooperative milk producing and marketing associations. In this he has signally succeeded, his latest accomplishment in that field being "The Land 'o' Lakes Creamery" which in a conference devoted to dairy development and the cooperative marketing of dairy products preceding his address to the students at 3 p. m.

Increased Acreages Are Expected in Most Crops Except Oats and Barley; No Report on Cotton Acreage Made

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, April 3. — If the planting intentions of Texas farmers are carried out there will be increased acreages this year in corn, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, grain sorghums, legumes, rice and tame hay and decreases in oats and barley, the annual prospective crop acreage report issued by Carl H. Robinson, agricultural statistician for the United States department of agriculture, revealed.

The prospective acreage of the eleven crops surveyed including winter wheat and rye, was 14,012,000 acres, an increase of 9 per cent over the 1929 harvested area of 12,870,000 acres.

The report carried no information on cotton because "national legislation specifically prohibits reports on prospective cotton acreage."

Robinson made it plain that the report was a record of the farmers' intentions to plant at the present time, in comparison with what they did grow last year, and was not a forecast of what they would actually plant. Reports of the planted acreage will be made in July.

The fall-sown wheat acreage increased 8 per cent over that of the year before, the estimated total being 2,927,000 compared with 2,710,000 in the fall of 1928, the report stated.

"Farmers' intentions indicate that the Texas corn acreage will be 9 per cent larger than last year. This would mean about 4,911,000 acres compared with 4,533,000 acres in 1929. The national crop is expected to be 2.8 per cent larger than last year.

"A decrease in the Texas oat acreage is indicated, largely as a result of the loss suffered by the

Mrs. Julia Kiene and Miss Marjanna Kittell of Topeka, Kansas, both of the editorial staff of the woman's department of Capper's Farmer, were in Bryan for the day.

arate portions of the dwelling and their housekeeping is done separately portions of the dwelling and their housekeeping is done separately, they will be returned by the census enumerator as separate families, no matter how closely they may be related by blood.

There may even be a family of one, according to Dr. Hill, for a bachelor maintaining separate quarters will be considered a family as well as employees of stores or other establishments if they sleep in the place of business.

The object of fixing the status of the family as a group of persons living together in the same dwelling place or premises so far as the census is concerned, is to assure the listing of all citizens without repetition.

All persons will be questioned and listed on the census rolls sometime during the month of April. A total of 25 questions will be put to the head of each family or independent adult for the purpose of determining home ownership, ratios of city and county dwellers, educational status and the percent of foreign born and citizens of foreign descent.

Nine additional questions have been arranged to determine the existing industrial conditions and particularly to check on the prevalence of unemployment.

Of all modern devices and equipment considered as essential to home life today, "Is there a radio in your home?" is the only question which checks the home condition of every individual person enumerated by the census-taker.

for life to the junk pile. Yet a lot of the cast away pipes and irons could be used. It would take no genius to make the Ferris-wheel, "head-over-heels", "jumping jack," giant stride, the giant swing and many of the "extra things".

By the way, my friend, how about you "plastering" your advertisement on the "jumping jack"? Your business would certainly be on a high horse. Maybe you would prefer to have it "Giant-stride" toward success.

Maybe I have used too many words already, but there is one more thing on my mind. It is the Mothers' Day. It will soon be here. Wouldn't it be "just nice" if all the mothers of Bryan could have one big picnic in the park on that day and an extensive playground dedicated to them and to their darlings? What do you say?
